Foothill cruisers urged to reserve for celebration

Foothill residents have almost a week to make reservations for the three-night Royal Caribbean cruise to Catalina and Ensenada, Mexico, scheduled to leave June 21.

Horst Engel, co-owner of VIP Travel and tour guide, explained that the cruise line needs a specific number of reservations by the end of April. The cut-off date is earlier than had been announced at the outset of the cruise information.

VIP is offering a 25 percent reduction on all reservation costs as a gift in this, their 30th year of the travel business.

The cruise offers both outside and inside cabins; however, Engel told The News that the inside staterooms were going very quickly.

Those taking the cruise leave Friday, June 21, at 8 p.m. from San Pedro. The ship cruises to Catalina, on to Ensenada and returns to San Pedro at 8 a.m., Monday, June. 24.

Judy Webb-Martin, president of Main Street Chamber, has scheduled a board meeting as a "get-away seminar" during the cruise. Not only board members but also Main Street Chamber members are urged to make the trip as well as all other foothill residents.

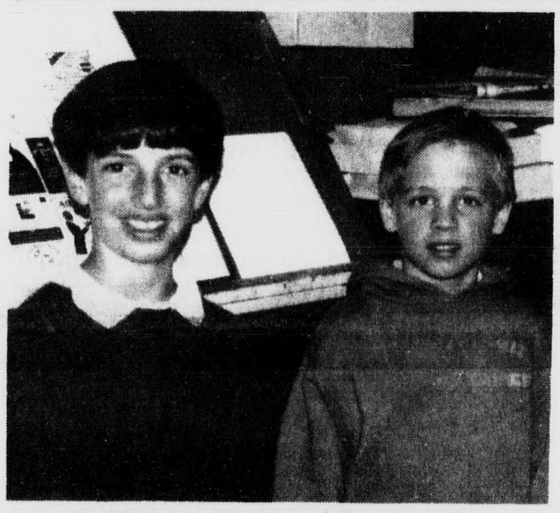

VIP has scheduled a special Summer Solstice party which is separate from the captain's cocktail party. The local travel company also has a treasure hunt planned as well as other surprises, none of which Engel will reveal until the local residents are aboard the cruise ship.

As well as unique activities, food aboard these cruise ships is legendary. With the traditional breakfast, lunch and dinner there are between-meal snacks available, ending with the famous midnight buffet.

Passenger capacity of the Royal Caribbean is 1610 with a total staff of 685.

From the top-most lounge to the dining rooms and casinos, as well as the shopping plaza---it's all there for the foothill cruisers.

Those wishing more information should call (818) 355-1438 or (213) 681-5485 as quickly as possible.

Matthew Helfgott and Brandon Thor.

Newspaper moguls declare foothills open territory

Their first words were, "We would like to thank you for accommodating us by changing your schedule." The words were so big to come out of their mouths since they are only second and third graders.

Brandon Thor, second grader at St. Rita's School in Sierra Madre, and Matthew Helfgott, third grader at Polytechnic School in Pasadena, slipped up on chairs in the office and promptly charmed The News staff with their precociousness.

We realized that we had two candidates for Mensa. Had it not been for child labor laws, we would have offered them jobs immediately.

It seems they are starting a newspaper and would like a few pointers. We turned the tables and interviewed them at the same time.

What is the name of their paper? Well, they hadn't decided yet. Since they both lived in Arcadia they were thinking of something about Arcadia in the flag. "Arcadia News?" How about something with "Foothill" in it to indicate that it would have news other than Arcadia information? They weren't convinced but would think about it.

We were so easily smitten by their charms that we forked over $3 in cash for a year's subscription to the paper, sight-unseen. That's 25 cents a month for a year. It's a monthly newspaper.

How are they selling it except to easy targets like us? "Door to door. So far we have about 15 subscribers but not everyone wants to take it the whole year. Most people just buy it for a couple of months."

When we were asked how we know what stories people like and where we get our stories, the answer was simple: most of them walk in or a tip is called in. Our stories are chosen because we pretty well know the towns we cover and what people like to read. What are the boys going to feature?

"We thought something about Neighborhood Watch," Brandon offered.

"Then we were also thinking about something called 'New Kids on the Block' which would feature some people who have just moved into the neighborhood," Matthew scratched his head and grinned with a mouth that was stained red from a popsicle.

"We're a good vacation spot so we could come up with something about that, I guess," Brandon pursed his lips and looked up to the sky. We suggested doing a story on places they like to eat so vacationers would note the story and go to those restaurants.

"We thought about trying to get people to recycle their trash and some articles about people helping each other. We don't want basic newspaper news. We want something real different. I guess we could bribe somebody to jump off a cliff and we could report that."

We told them that probably was not a great idea because there were too many interesting people out there to interview without contriving something.

We suggested interviewing their school principals. They shot sideways glances at each other and we dropped the subject.

Where did the idea of a newspaper come up? They had a sleepover and Brandon's dad suggested it to them. Brandon's parents are Liz and Tony. Matthew's are Paul and Susie. Brandon's dad just kind of threw out the idea. "We thought it was a great idea and he didn't expect us to come home with any money but we did," Brandon explained.

Brandon's dad is a vice president and controller of Ben Smith Construction and Matthew's dad is a doctor for two hospitals. "I can't remember which hospitals," Matthew put his right index finger to his forehead in concentration. Brandon's mother is a teacher at Huntington, seventh grade honors and regular math. Matthew's mother stays home with the family.

"You see, we need money and I take in the trash for $4.50 a month. During the school magazine drive I sold lots of magazines. My relatives are good because they're softies," Brandon assured

Massage business passes Planning Commission

By Phyllis Chapman

Sandra Swanson's application to establish a massage and reflexology business in her rented home at 537 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. brought a large crowd to the Apr. 18 Planning Commission meeting of both supporters and those in opposition.

Swanson, who has been a certified therapist since 1983, has been thoroughly checked out by the city. She has been working for a chiropractor and at a beauty salon in Old Town Pasadena. A recent widow, she desires to establish her own business with the clientele she has built up and would conduct this business in her home, using the front room of the unit she rents. The remaining area of the unit would continue as her residence. The business would be by appointment only with

New pastor at Bethany Church

Pastor Barney Hamady will be coming to Bethany Church as senior pastor May 12. He comes from Calvary Community Church of Westlake Village, where he has been associate pastor of caring.

Hamady comes with strengths in preaching and Bible teaching, along with counseling and coordinating 12-step programs and growth groups. He has directed Evangelism Explosion ministries, as well as "Churches Alive" classes. He is on the Board of Directors of "Be Free," a treatment program for teens with chemical abuse.

Hamady and his wife, Linda, have two sons: Benjamin, 10 and Dirk, 7. The entire family is involved in sports. Linda runs in 5K and 10K events in the Westlake area. Benjamin is on a traveling basketball team, the Newberry Park Panthers. Barney has competed in triathlon events in the past six years and also coaches little league sports.

Rev. Hamady holds a BA degree in Psychology from Cal State Fullerton, and a Master of Divinity from Fuller Seminary. He is ordained by The Reformed Church in America. His style of worship is celebratory and relevant.

"I really don't believe that we should bore people. The church is all about Good News and this should be reflected in our worship gatherings. The preaching must speak to the tremendous human need today. It's a great time to minister to the lost, captive, brokenhearted, and suffering."

Bethany Church is located at 93 North Baldwin Avenue in Sierra Madre. Worship services are at 8:30 and 11 a.m. Sundays. Visitors are always welcome.

Pastor Hamady with his wife, Linda, and sons, Benjamin and Dirk.

Rah, rah let's remember the two 'R's'

With all the discussion going on about the two "R's" — recycling trash and reserving water—The News chose to paraphrase some of the pointers in the California Department of Conservation's Division of Recycling, "The Earth Works Group."

We know there is too much garbage.

Did you know that in a lifetime the average American will throw away 600 times that adult's weight in garbage? That could be as much as 90,000 lbs. of trash.

We know we're running out of landfill space.

Over the next five years 200 California landfills will close. About 14,000 of America's 20,000 landfills closed between 1978 - 1988. By 1993, another 2000 will close.

We know we should worry about safety first.

Most landfills were built before proper safety standards were established. They are not equipped to stop toxics from seeping into the groundwater. All of the landfills will eventually leak, says the Environmental Protection Agency.

We know we shouldn't burn garbage.

Incinerators produce millions of tons of ash which is toxic and which goes into landfills.

Recycling, then, is economical, cheaper and more profitable if you play your cards right.

Sierra Madre is one of those progressive towns that has its own recycling center and also works with Western Waste to get rid of the cans, glass, newspapers.

We need more Sierra Madres in the world.

Under the Pepper Tree

by Jan Reed

● Paul Watson's mother, Doris, celebrates her 95th birthday Sunday, Apr. 28. What a Milestone. We hope to do a short piece on her following her birthday, but in the meantime, remember her.

The Watsons owned the dairy in Sierra Madre and she was known as the Dairy Maid.

Our congratulations to you, Mrs. Watson.

● Rudy Behrens, our friend who has recently retired from Arnold's Hardware, has moved to Lopez home and is looking for some of his friends to visit him.

We had a piece in the paper about Rudy sometime ago...He is a special Sierra Madrean and we should stop at the Lopez home to see him, sit on the porch and just chat awhile.

● Sandy Boyd-Davis, Sierra Madrean, was surprised to find her name in the Wall Street Journal Mar. 29 in "B-1." She made a presentation early March at an East Coast convention and some of her information was picked up by that inimitable Journal.

Sandy is working on her dissertation toward a Ph.D. in sociology and she's trying to beat the stork. Her baby is due June 20 and, hopefully, she will have her USC dissertation finished before that.

At least that's what her husband, John, hopes for, too.

Congratulations to you both.

● Jan Maddox is back in the hospital after a little setback with viral pneumonia. She keeps telling us that she'll be out by the end of the week. So far, we aren't sure which week. We wish her well, oh, so well. I know the whole town is thinking of you, Jan, and wondering when you'll be back to take over for the many organizations who count on your brains and organizational abilities.

All of you together send up some energy for her, please.

● Treasures of Sierra Madre, like the Phoenix, is rising from its ashes and is re-opening in the Old City Hall Friday, May 3, says Larry Lampe, owner. He says the business will be much the same as the one which burned down in the fire, two Christmas' ago.

● Yes, there are some honest people in this world...many of them, in fact. Dr. Michael Tims lost a gold bracelet which his wife had given him. Much sentimental value, right? Well, he put an ad in The News and, lo and behold, a little gal named Kathy called him and told him she'd found the bracelet. Unfortunately, we weren't able to get hold of her before we went to press. But we'd like everyone out there to know that there's a teenager living in the canyon named Kathy who is terrific.

● Because this is a family newspaper, I cannot use the proper name given to a doll which I received lately, so we'll just call the doll the DARNIT DOLL.

It came from Mae Reed, sister-in-law, and has to be the greatest thing since worry beads. This little soft doll has fuzzy yarn hair (which I partially snipped in getting the package open with a scissors) and you simply grasp it by the legs, when you are angry or frustrated, and hit it against anything, all the time saying, "Darnit, darnit, darnit." Three times and it works. You're no longer angry or frustrated.

I think we should send a DARNIT DOLL to every leader in the world. And to non-leaders, to mothers of small children and teenagers, to managers, to...well, to everyone.

Mae, that is a heck of a great doll and I find that I'm using it about twice a day. Right now it's Tuesday afternoon and I find I'm reaching for my DARNIT DOLL quite often while getting the paper ready for publication.

Thanks, Mae. You have the corner on the market here in Sierra Madre, Arcadia and surrounding communities.

● The Junior League of Pasadena, the city of Pasadena and Saint Andrew's Church are banding together and are giving free immunizations on DPT, polio, MMR, MR (high school graduates) this Saturday, Apr. 27, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Saint Andrew's Grammar School auditorium, at 42 Chestnut Ave., Pasadena.

Those wishing more information should call 796-0244.

Sad about apathy in election

What a sad commentary on the voting citizens of Sierra Madre that Clark Coberly lost last Tuesday's election. Where were all the parents who worked so hard to transfer their children into the Arcadia school system? Instead, it seems that many of the voters were us older citizens who still take out voting privileges seriously. Here we had a fellow Sierra Madrean willing to go to bat for our interests in the Pasadena School system, but none of you cared enough to see that he was elected.

I love our wonderful town, but sometimes I'm ashamed of the apathy of its voting citizens.

Celese M. McCreary

Thank you, EMTs!

Fire Dept. EMTs on Thursday, Apr. 4 at 10 p.m. answered a call with incredible quickness. They were very professional and very courteous.

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly express my gratitude and thank some of the unsung heroes of "our town."

We are indeed fortunate to have their caring attitude and unselfish giving of their time and talents.

Ruth Passage

Special thanks to Dick Rogers

I would like to take this occasion to express my deep appreciation to Dick Rogers for the excellent article he very kindly wrote about me in the Sierra Madre News on Apr. 18, 1991.

I am very honored to have the opportunity to serve my beloved city of Sierra Madre and the children, and will be proud to continue to do so.

Thank you, Dick Rogers, for caring about the people in our community.

Farewell to brother

My 69-year old, red-headed brother, who was a dentist in Alhambra for some 25 years, died Wednesday morning, Apr. 17, of a skin cancer, perhaps induced by the wonderful California sun. I love it, but fair complectioned people should be very careful of overexposure.

"Red" was the life of every party I ever saw him attend, and I will sorely miss him because he was my most intimate and best link with the east coast and my big, gregarious family.

A lot of people talk about education, but very few of us find the time, have the know how, money and determination to do something about it. When his wife, Helen, who also died a few months ago, and a few friends, attempted to talk to the state education authorities, about going back to fundamentals, and were rebuffed, they started a school of their own, the now famous Highpoint Academy. They liked the Carden principles of teaching phonics, in learning to spell and to read, as did the McGuffey readers, and Blue Backed spellers of old, and morality, as the basic foundation stones of building a life.

"Red" himself, put up the money for the first building, a private residence near Caltech. They later expanded into their present quarters at 1720 Kinneloa Canyon Road, Pasadena.

What a wonderful response, if asked near the end: "What did you do in this life?" to be able to say: "I helped build a school."

Ben Austin

Impressed

While strolling down Sierra Madre Boulevard the other evening and upon approaching city hall and hearing the sound of the fire horn, I must say I was quite impressed as I observed how rapidly and orderly the police department and volunteer firemen took their positions and proceeded to an emergency call. It was obvious that their dedication and "serve and protect" propensities were not only highly professional but most sincere and are to be commended. We should feel grateful to have such a fine, efficient team in our city. Thank you. You are appreciated!

Nancy Vargas

Not so impressed

On the other hand, and again, while strolling down the Boulevard on another recent occasion, I observed a woman crossing the street with a child in a stroller in a marked crosswalk in the center of town during daylight hours.

Several vehicles ignored her as she slowly proceeded into the crosswalk obviously trying to beat her. As she eased out into the crosswalk and was nearly half way into the center of the street, another vehicle approaching the crosswalk also completely ignored her and whizzed right through as though she wasn't even there, although there was no way he could have missed seeing her as she pushed her baby in the stroller. There have been many, many instances over the past several weeks wherein traffic is simply not stopping for pedestrians in crosswalks, feeling confident they can "beat them to the punch."

Well, sooner or later someone is definitely going to get punched (hurt) if traffic continues in this fashion. This is what I call "life in the fast lane." Slow down, you guys; give the pedestrians a break.

Massage business

Swanson seeing three to five clients a day. No sign would identify the business at this address.

No zone change would be required as the lot is zoned R-P and maintains a pre-existing R-3 use. There are seven on-site parking spaces. The property has been owned for the last 10 years by John and Whilma Holcombe. The latter, a planning commissioner, refrained from discussion in the matter. However, John Holcombe was among those who spoke in favor, expressing pride in the property and of their years of friendship with the applicant. Swanson's unit is the front home of three residential units on the site.

Others speaking in favor pointed out Swanson's qualifications, her good character and work ethic. Although massage therapy by a certified specialist has long been accepted as a beneficial health practice, the use of massage parlors as a "cover up"

Navy ensign completes basic surface warfare

Navy Ensign Eric J. Lindguist, a 1986 graduate of Maranatha High School of Sierra Madre, has completed the Basic Surface Warfare Officer's Course.

During the 18-week course conducted at Surface Warfare Officers School, Pacific, San Diego, Lindguist was taught how to perform as a watch and division officer aboard Navy ships.

He received extensive instructions on the duties of an underway officer of the deck, which included shiphandling and maneuvering information under simulated battle conditions. He also studied radar detection, tracking and plotting of enemy aircraft, ships and missiles; communications; damage control; and shipboard organization.

He is also a 1990 graduate of Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind., with a Bachelor of Arts degree. He joined the Navy in May 1990.

Out and About

By Dick Rogers

The sun was low on the horizon...early evening. Life at the beach was on a low setting...even the surf had mellowed out. I was making my way back from the Balboa Pier, along the bike path...along the endless rows of beach front houses. People were few. Tourists were gone, kids had long ago made it onto the freeways. A few locals were perambulating...talking in hushed tones. A handicapped man, with an incredibly strong face, sat in his wheelchair at the edge of the sand taking in the parting day. I was very much at peace...until I saw the bikes.

At 36th Street and Seashore Drive, I spotted two bicycles securely locked to the bicycle rack at the edge of the beach. This is where the bike path ends and one must leave the oceanfront and use a bike path along Seashore Drive. The bicycles intrigued me. The tires were flat...the rubber had almost decayed off the rims. One seat had been pilfered. There was a lot of rust, and the dirt and grime of months, perhaps years, had gathered on the frames. Both were Schwinn 10-speeds (I believe), one blue and the other aquamarine. They appeared to be identical bikes and were joined by a cable laced through the heavy metal bike rack and locked with a master lock. It would seem that at the time they were placed there, they were expensive, well-cared-for bicycles.

If there had been two human skeletons wired to that bike rack, it couldn't have intrigued me more than what was now before my eyes. Where are the people who belong to these bikes?

There are many possibilities...some more reasonable than others. A couple of well-to-do college kids went to the beach a few years ago, got drunk at a party, and forgot where they left their bikes. Or, a couple of kids had a great day at the beach...went to the Newport Pier, checked everything out, and went back to a bike rack (not the one holding their bikes) and voila...stolen bikes! No good? How about a couple of rowdies...into some dope...got busted, sent to jail and when they got out assumed the bikes.

No, the one that troubles me is that perhaps the people who belong to these bikes are among the missing. Perhaps the sea has claimed them (it wouldn't be the first time), or perhaps they have been among the most unfortunate. Perhaps they trusted someone too easily...someone who took advantage...and those bikes are not only a reminder of two souls whose fates are a mystery, but a sad monument of sorts to alert us to the fact that in a sea of humanity, we can, indeed, be swallowed up.

Sierra Madre Main Street Chamber of Commerce

By Ron Hutson

Recently 15 Wistaria Fete committee members and participants got together to recap this year's event. Apparently, the numerous meetings held throughout the year to coordinate planning among the various participants paid off, everyone agreed the event went off very well.

The weather received most of the blame for fewer visitors this year, about 3500 at the Vine and perhaps 4000 total in town for the day. The shuttle bus system needs more fine tuning. While there were no significant lines downtown, there was some waiting to board for the return trip. Depending on who you talk to, there was...or was not, a delay problem at the Richardson House. According to one source, the last person was finally picked up there three days after the event. Hummm? Anyhow, it was agreed with some additional parking restrictions and traffic control the shuttle system could be improved.

Because the line for the shuttle was along Sierra Madre Blvd. rather than along N. Baldwin Ave., and because the bus and car traffic formed somewhat of a barrier, the retail shops on the East side of Baldwin did not have much foot traffic. Their disappointment and concern was strongly registered.

Probably the major bone of contention was the downtown Craft Fair. A couple of people suggested some of the craft items were "tacky," not up to Sierra Madre quality standards. I won't comment on that one. A couple of the booths were selling general merchandise not craft items. That should not have happened. Several local club and organization representatives reported a significant reduction in their sales this year. At least one club officer feels it was due to the craft booths and has advised us they won't participate next year if there is a craft fair. Rather a strong position, but they are entitled to an opinion.

I could have skipped over this negative, in what otherwise was a great success. But, there are a couple of points that we all need to remember. In recent history, until the Promotion Council sponsored the Kersting Court social center last year, there was no organized opportunity for all clubs and organizations to directly benefit from the Wistaria Fete. The original reason for an expanded community event was, and is, to test ideas in preparation for hosting a significant 1994 Centennial celebration. This year's weather was not the best. It must have had some effect on attendance, which does relate to overall merchandise sales. Past experience tells us next year's event will be better, if not bigger.

For Book Lovers

Loretta Morrill

"Feeling her breath come back, Sadie began to jog agian. The sun came out from behind a cloud and sparkled on the wet grass. There was hope, of course, always hope as long as you kept breathing and could put one foot in front of the next one. Love was a mystery, coming and going like the sun, brightening your days when you found it, and turning day into night when it went away. But hope was cheap, thank God, even poor people could afford it, and it was something to hang onto until love came along again." from "Sadie Shapiro, Matchmaker."

By Robert Kimmel Smith

Meet Sadie Shapiro, the Senior Citizens' answer to "Thirty Something." When you're too old for Jane Fonda's work out, you're ready for Shapiro's league. A delightful soft-hearted character who knits her own jogging suits, writes books on physical fitness, and appears on TV talk shows. For this book, she has been given cupid's own bow.

As the story opens, we meet her husband, her second time around blessing, Sam Beck, he is about to be given a tea box with three names: Harry Wald (widower, 56). Doris Mandelbaum (widow, 50 plus), Brenda Fogelman (24). It seems that an old friend of Sadie's lived out her autumn years as a successful matchmaker, but as it came time for her to meet her Maker, she still had these three hard cases, unmatched. Could Sadie please finish this good work?

Would she? Well, as the story says: "There are few things in life as powerful as an old woman with her mind made up. Especially when it was Sadie Shapiro." She would and she did, with an extra match thrown in for good measure.

So it is we discover that at any age, at any stage, the fundamental things (chemistry and a few alterations) still apply.

I liked this book because it is life read through rose-colored bifocals. Life as we would like it to turn out, and sometimes wonderfully does.

"Luck," she said, "that's what Harry needs. A little luck that can drop right into your lap, something you couldn't reach even with a hundred step ladders."

It was indeed luck that dropped this book into my lap, in the disguise of a friend who had read it first. I hope to buy copies and drop it into the laps of several other friends.

"You'd be surprised," says Sadie. "Sometimes how love can start from the tiniest beginnings."

After you begin with this book you'll want to find its sequels. Sadie is a fun character to follow around, and the best part is, she moves in large print editions. So, as Sadie would say, why should you strain your eyes to enjoy?

MOVIE REVIEW

To See, Or Not To See

ASHLEIGH KATZ

To See, Or Not To See

MORTAL THOUGHTS — Demi Moore, Glenn Headley, Bruce Willis.

See. Willis - what a jerk! He makes you glad you know he's doomed in this film. Of course, he causes even more trouble dead as our heroines struggle with his murder and each other, weaving a tangled web that has a few unexpected bugs within. This is the closest thing to a Hitchcock film that I've seen in a long time.

Pasadena Marketplace, Monrovia Mann, Temple City Edwards.

CHATTAHOOCHEE — Gary Oldman, Dennis Hopper.

See - When a war hero goes just a little berserk in the '50s, he gets in a hell of a mess in the form of a Florida prison. Based on a true story, this film pulls no punches in showing an abominable side of human nature and one man's attempt at reforming those who would reform him. Oldman is, as usual, frighteningly convincing.

IS HE 10 FEET TALL? — Second graders in Gloria Griffiths' class at Sierra Madre Elementary School look at Lance Corporal Jeff Schwartz as if he were 10 feet tall and asked him many questions Monday when he visited his Alma Mater. The Marine was home on leave after serving in Desert Storm and answered questions about the weather, terrain, what he did for entertainment, what it felt like when he arrived in Saudi Arabia. Children were fascinated by Schwartz' accounts of being scared and he said, "No one would want to be in war."

Save your castoffs for plant exchange

The Beautification Committee's Free Plant Exchange is coming up on May 11, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., in Memorial Park, Shelby Pope, committee chair, reminded Sierra Madre green thumbers and plant enthusiasts this week.

All plants are offered free of charge to anyone. The only stipulation is that they be given TLC once transported to their gardens. Donations of plants are not necessary, but are encouraged and welcomed.

Last year over 1000 plants, cuttings, bulbs, corms and seeds were donated by Sierra Madreans wishing to share their garden treasures with neighbors and friends in the community.

As usual, no plants remained at the end of the sale as Al Kephart and Garth Woodgrift rounded up the remaining specimens for their "throwaway" garden at the Nature Friends in the Canyon which they maintain as a community service and labor of love.

Three plant experts will be available to advise customers how to care for the plants they choose to adopt, including Jim Grancich, Leone Nash and Jerry Wilwerding.

Cuttings should be started now to be ready for the exchange, Pope noted, stating, "This Beautification Committee project is aimed at spreading the beauty of our Sierra Madre gardens through sharing with others our extras to enhance other gardens."

The usual silent auction of rare cymbidiums from the noted collections of Victor Daniels, Ross Phillips and Wilwerding will take place during the Exchange and Wistaria T-shirts and postcards will be offered for sale as a fund-raising effort to subsidize the many community beautification programs sponsored by the committee, including the Downtown Memorial Flower Baskets, Children's Sidewalk Art, Wistaria Fete Vine activities, Mini-Nursery and semi-annual Wistaria Awards and Commendations.

Refreshments will also be available.

Further information may be obtained by calling Pope at 355-8884. Pick-up of plants to be donated may be arranged for those unable to bring them to the Plant Exchange.

What to do before the shaking starts.

When an earthquake happens, everyone gets a little shaky. But by following just a few simple tips you'll not only remain calmer–you'll stay safer.

Before the earth moves, know where your gas meter is. And keep an adjustable wrench close by just in case you need to turn it off. But don't be too hasty. Gas should only be turned off if you smell it or hear it leaking.

And a final suggestion. Make sure your water heater has approved flexible piping and is securely strapped to the wall. It's a good way to stay out of hot water when the shaking starts.

On Stage

By Mary Cogswell Baum

The current play at the Sierra Madre Playhouse is Neil Simon's autobiographical "Broadway Bound" and it is a highly polished and entertaining show.

Simon, probably America's most prolific playwright, seems to have three sides to his career as a writer. He can write very funny situation comedies such as "Barefoot in the Park," "The Odd Couple" and "The Goodbye Girl." He has recently turned to concentrate on situations too painful to be really funny, such as "Prisoner of Second Avenue" which are not really comedies no matter how amusing their dialogue. And he has written his own three-part mini-series based on his own experiences in "Brighton Beach Memoirs," "Biloxi Blues" and "Broadway Bound."

In "Broadway Bound" we are again with the Jerome family, with Kate, the motherly housewife, trying to get her sons, the bright, analytical Eugene and his excitable older brother, Stan, to dinner when all their attention is on their budding career as radio script writers. Her husband, Jack, has become increasingly more remote; her sister Blanche has married a successful businessman to the disgust of their Troskyite father Ben.

The cast is much the same as it was in the successful "Brighton Beach..." Kent-Moore as Eugene has an expressive voice but in the first act is remarkably poker-faced. He comes alive in the second, and is quite satisfactory. Tamra Witten-Auzenne handles Blanche's big scene with her father with skill and sympathy, and Joe La Gue is the picturesque selectively deaf grandfather. Tom Tombrello does a sympathetic job as the withdrawing father, Jerry Morrison is an enthusiastic Stan, and Sanda Knott neatly underplays the pivotal mother, a part that could easily become a stereotype.

The great advantage of these family plays is that Eugene often turns to the audience to explain his fascination with people and why he finds their ways so comic. It gives you an insight into Simon's highly objective view of the world, a living example of the old saying, "Life is a tragedy to those who feel and a comedy to those who think."

Director Bob Hakman has a sort of signature trick whereby he has his actors stand and look out over the audience for minutes at a time, sometimes saying lines, sometimes not. In this case, with Eugene so audience-oriented already, it works very well, and the audience certainly can see and hear them.

Eric White is given the credit for a very nicely detailed set and has managed three different acting areas on the small stage.

"Broadway Bound" has a lot of laughs and a lot of information about the background of a principal contemporary commentator. It runs on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 through May 25. There are matinees on May 5 and May 19. Call the Sierra Madre Playhouse, 355-4318, for information.

An unusual, one-shot opportunity is being offered on Saturday, May 4, to see one of the late Leonard Bernstein's major works. "Mass" was written for the opening of the Washington, D.C.'s Kennedy Center. It is an elaborate theater piece, based roughly on the Catholic mass but involving actors, dancers and a full orchestra as well as a choir. The music ranges from the lyrical to the jazzy and the theme involves the nature of modern religion and religiosity and the nature of Man's relationship to God.

It is a startling theatrical event and is being ambitiously staged for one performance only at the Pasadena Presbyterian Church, Saturday, May 4, at 8 p.m. The cast includes the 40-voice Kirk Choir under the direction of Steve Pilkington and the 50-voice Los Angeles Children's Chorus under the direction of Rebecca Thompson. There is a 20-voice "Street Chorus" and the principal role of the Celebrant is played by Don Christenson. Marc Jacobs directs and musical director is Steve Pilkinton.

The Pasadena Presbyterian Church is on the corner of Madison and Colorado in Pasadena, and tickets may be obtained in advance at the church office at 54 N. Oakland as well as at the door. They are a modest $8.

No drought at 'Singin' in Rain'

Will it really rain on the Civic Auditorium stage? You bet it will when the San Gabriel Civic Light Opera presents "Singin' in the Rain" May 3 - 19. The show will run 12 performances over three weekends at the San Gabriel Civic Auditorium, located at 320 S. Mission Drive, San Gabriel.

This all-singing, all-dancing stage spectacle captures all the excitement of Hollywood's greatest movie musical about the dawn of talking pictures, and features some of America's best loved comedy routines, dance numbers and love ballards. The legendary musical score includes such all-time favorites as "Good Morning," "You Are My Lucky Star," "Make 'em Laugh," "Fit as a Fiddle," and of course the famous title song, when it will rain right on stage!

With a vintage score by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed and others, plus a book by Betty Comden and Adolf Green based on their original screenplay — and that torrential dance number — "Singin' in the Rain" is 24-carat classic entertainment.

Ken Prescott stars as movie idol Don Lockwood, the role made famous by Gene Kelly. Linda Griffin co-stars as the aspiring newcomer, Kathy Selden, which was played by Debbie Reynolds in the movie version. Randy Rogel will appear as Cosmo Brown — the Donald O'Connor vehicle — which features the hilarious comedy routine "Make 'em Laugh," and Dori Lonn will portray the jealous dumb-blonde leading lady, Lina Lamont.

"Singin' in the Rain" will be directed by Bill Shaw and choreographed by Rikki Lugo with musical direction by M. Roger Lockie.

Volunteers to be lauded at Methodist Hospital

"We love our Volunteers!" is the way Methodist Hospital, Arcadia, will recognize their 400 plus volunteers in celebrating National Volunteer Week, Apr. 21 - 27. These terms of endearment will be emblazoned across pink ribbons worn by Hospital employees as a salute to the women, men, and juniors who provide continuous, invaluable assistance in so many areas of the Hospital.

"They're the best people in the world," says Nancy Baillie and Jo Ann Cork, Co-Directors of Methodist's Volunteer Services, "and we would have a hard time living without them."

For 9½ years Methodist's Volunteer Services was co-directed by Nancy Baillie and Pat Wallace. Pat recently retired, but is coming back soon as a regular member of the volunteer family. Jo Ann Cork was a community volunteer for 19 years before joining Nancy as Volunteer Co-Director in March, 1991.

During National Volunteer Week Nancy and Jo Ann will serve their staff punch and cookies while a "Salute to Volunteers" banner plays in the breeze in the patio outside their office.

The Hospital Auxiliary, comprised of women 18 years of age and older, the Men's Auxiliary, the Junior Volunteers, and the Arcadia Assistance League make up the Hospital's volunteer organization. Methodist has benefited from their untiring commitment since the hospital opened in 1957. Over 1.4 million volunteer hours have been contributed. To learn more about the Hospital's volunteer activities or to receive membership information, call (818) 574-3646.

Principal Bill Rosecrans, who presented the award, recalled the advice he received upon coming to Sierra Madre, that there were two magic words that will solve andy problem: Bernice Shepherd. Shepherd was also honored with a standing ovation.

Bonnie Armstrong and Sharon Lefler also received Honorary Service Awards. Armstrong, who received the award from School Boardmember George Van Alstine, has served 18 years and was last year's PTA co-president, is chair of Pasadena's Commission on Children and Youth.

Lefler, who received her award from Gloria Giersbach of PTA Council, was honored for her excellence in teaching and outstanding service to students, colleagues and PTA.

Music was provided by both the string orchestra and the band, directed by music teacher Janitta Keck and choral singers from Gloria Griffiths' second grade, Joy Hinkley's fourth grade and Anne Lutze's fifth grade. The audience heard an original song, "The Children of the World," composed by Terry Rogers, choral music teacher.

Massage business passes Commission for illegal business has given such businesses a bad name.

This was a concern of those in opposition and that their property values would suffer from just the perception people have of such a business. "Just hearing the word 'massage' would cause eyebrows to go up and there is no place for such a business in a town like Sierra Madre," said Inez Robertson who owns a condominium at 555 W. Sierra Madre Blvd. Sierra Madre, in fact, had a massage business but it no longer exists since the owner died.

Others expressed concern that the business would create a parking problem. However, this was discounted by commission members. They also felt for health purposes the business should be allowed and that the applicant would not be doing anything "illegal, immoral or immodest."

Commissioner Ross Tyree made the motion which was seconded by Commissioner Stanley Hutchinson to allow Swanson to conduct her business at this address with the condition that there be no signage of any kind and that after a six-month period the Planning Commission would again review the matter. The motion passed.

Other business conducted at the public hearing portion of the meeting were the granting with conditions of a side yard variance for a patio cover at 190 E. Alegria, a front yard variance for terraced stairway and landing at 47 Auburn, and variances to alter and expand an existing two family dwelling at 169 Santa Anita Ct. which recently had a fire. The variance requested for a patio and spa at 280 Sierra Woods Dr. was denied.

The commission agreed to send Ordinance 1074 with ammendments to the municipal code on to the City Council for review and approval. These deal with uses of detached garages, carports and states that the maximum height allowed shall be 10' to the coping of a flat roof or eave and 15' to the highest point of a ridge line. Side yards for interior or corner lots be 10 percent of the lot width.

In an on-going effort to maintain the integrity of the R-1 Zone, discussion ensued regarding such architectual features as eaves which may extend or project into a required side yard, provided that in no case may such encroachment exceed 30", nor nearer to finish ground level than 7 feet.

Under consideration, also, at this meeting was a memo from Kev Tcharkoutian, the director of public works, regarding the practice of the use of city parkway for sidewalk dining tables and the safety hazards of the placement of outside chairs and tables. Under consideration by the commission is the placement of some sort of attractive barrier to provide the protection needed. Looking to the future and after the seismic upgrading of our downtown businesses that consideration could be given to upgrading the rear of buildings on the south side of the boulevard to create a cafe setting on the Mariposa Parking lot.

Congregational

April 28 is Prayer Emphasis Sunday at Sierra Madre Congregational Church. There will be three morning worship services: 8:15; 9:45; and 11:15.

Pastor Dick Anderson is preaching on the text: Isaiah 50:4-5, and his topic is "Prayer: Listening To God."

We often think of prayer as talking to God or asking God for something that is important to us. Have you ever thought of prayer as conversing with God? In a conversation, both parties talk. When one speaks, the other listens. When one asks a question, the other one listens and then answers. Conversation is a "two-way street."

Think of prayer as a conversation which God has initiated with you. He speaks first. He asks a question; "Where are you?" This is the first question from God to man recorded in the Bible. Since authentic Christianity is a relationship, and relationships are developed through conversations, it is vital that you begin to enter into conversation with God in order to understand prayer.

There were two sisters who knew Jesus. Often when Jesus was in Jerusalem, He would stay at their home which was a short distance outside the city in the village named Bethany. Once of the sisters served Jesus with hospitality, but did not really get in touch with His spirit. The other sister sat at Jesus' feet and listened to Him. The first sister resented the time her sister spent listening to Jesus. She finally spoke to Jesus but it was in the form of complaint. The second sister listened and received Jesus' heart and mind in a manner that caused Jesus to say that she had chosen the very best, and it would not be taken away from her.

Listening to the Lord is not something we easily do. It seems easier these days to "do something for the Lord" rather than listen. Yet if we would really come to know our Lord, listening is not only important, it is absolutely indispensable. After we listen to Jesus' heart, then we are in a much better position to serve Him more effectively.

Sunday evening at 6 p.m. Pastor Dick and Pastor John will conduct a workshop on :"Conversing With God." To complete the Prayer Emphasis Sunday, we will honor the Prayer Chain Volunteers and a reception will follow in Pritchard hall.

Bethany

By Al Elby

Something I have never quite understood and that is that Christians pray to the Lord for an answer to prayer and when it comes the comment may be made, "Boy, weren't we lucky." If luck is the answer to our dilemmas, why pray? Let me relate a tale that has just come to pass that places this all in its proper perspective.

Last June when our previous pastor decided to leave he was sharing this with a friend who was a youth director in Orange County. This friend said he knew a man, Barney Hamady, that would be a perfect pastor for Bethany. He sent the resume of this young man to Clyde and it sat in the back of Clyde's car for almost four months. The significance of all this is that had Clyde immediately turned over the resume to the Search Committee and they had contacted Barney, that would have been the end of it. Reason being that last July, Barney had absolutely no intention of leaving his place of ministry. He had ministered in this church that had grown from 100 to over 3000 worshipers at AM services.

However, in the interim between July and end of November Barney was approached by a number of churches to candidate for senior pastor. This didn't particularly alter his views other than, "Lord, are You trying to tell me something." So when we contacted him in early December he was at least receptive enough to listen, which he wouldn't have been in July. The long and short of it all is that we progressed from square to square with ever increasing intensity.

Barney and Linda started not at zero, but at minus 10, until God's will manifested itself in an ever increasing crescendo. They have now come to that station where they know without a shadow of a doubt that Bethany is where God would have them to be.

Some would say that this was all a great bit of luck. Now, if you buy that bit of logic then I have some ocean front property to sell you in the Mojave Desert. God put this package together and led us both to a meeting of souls. So we thank our Father for His leadership and direction, "Praise His Holy Name."

City Council passes moratorium; Mayor chooses liaison positions

With none speaking against extending the Hillside Moratorium for six months, Sierra Madre City Councilmembers completed that action and set up a schedule for the completion of the work, Ordinance 1069.

Major milestones include the following:

May 6: Authorization of Environmental Assessment and E.I.R. consultant.

May 10: Final review of modification by Hillside Management Task Force and recommendation.

May 16: Planning Commission public hearing on ordinance.

June 20: Second Planning Commission public hearing, if necessary.

July 23: City Council public hearing.

Aug. 20: City Council public hearing and/or final E.I.R. or environmental acceptance and first reading on ordinance.

Sept. 10: City Council second reading and adoption of ordinance.

Oct. 10: Effective date of new Hillside Management Ordinance.

Councilwoman MaryAnn MacGillivray made the motion to extend the date of the moratorium which would have expired on May 6 had it not been extended.

Although the council voted to relocate the pedestrian crosswalk at West Montecito and Baldwin Ave. to the area just north of E. Montecito Ave., Dr. Les Arnett, chairman of the board of trustees at Bethany, suggested a change to immediately south, across the street from Bethany.

Mayor Andrew Roy Buchan told Arnett to discuss the possible change with the city engineer and remarked, "It (the council's position) isn't cast in concrete."

Mayor Buchan's City Council appointments are as follows:

City Departments	Liaison
Finance	Bartolai
Fire	Buchan
Police	Adams
Public Works	Maurer

City Commissions	Liaison
Cultural Hert. Comm.	MacGillivray
Parks and Recreation Comm.	MacGillivray
Sierra Madre Comm. on Aging	Mauer
Planning Comm.	Adams

City Boards	Liaison
Library Board of Trustees	Bartolai
Telarts	Bartolai

City Committees	Liaison
City Beautification	MacGillivray
City Yards	Maurer
Crime Prevention	Adams
Parking	MacGillivray

The following Organizations/Interjurisdictional delegates and alternates has been appointed: Coachella Valley Joint Powers Insur. Auth., McRea, Joyce; Foothill Area Community Services (F.A.C.S.), Maurer, MacGillivray; Independent Cities Association, Bartolai, Adams; League of Cal. Cities, Buchan, Bartolai; Los Angeles County Sanit. Dist. 15, Buchan, Adams; Project D.A.Y. (Diversion Alt. for Youth), Adams, MacGillivray; Raymond Basin Management Board, Kev T., Maurer; San Gabriel Valley Association of Cities, Maurer, MacGillivray; Upper San Gabriel Valley Water District, Buchan, Bartolai.

City Administrator Jim McRae was able to negotiate for Sierra Madre to purchase 352 acre feet of water from the San Gabriel Valley Municipal Water District at an estimated cost of $115 per acre feet or $41,680.

Councilwoman MacGillivray pointed out that this amounts to a savings of about $120,000 from what it would have cost to install lines with Metropolitan Water District. "We have a better negotiating position and control," she said.

Mayor Buchan noted that the Raymond Basin was thinking of allowing an extension of overpumping before the rains came "and now they are taking a more conservative view."

The rather dramatic report from a young Scout named Fairchild will appear in next week's edition to be reported by Phyllis Chapman. He discussed the "great job of repairing Mt. Wilson Trial last Saturday" and Chapman will report his entire discussion with the council.

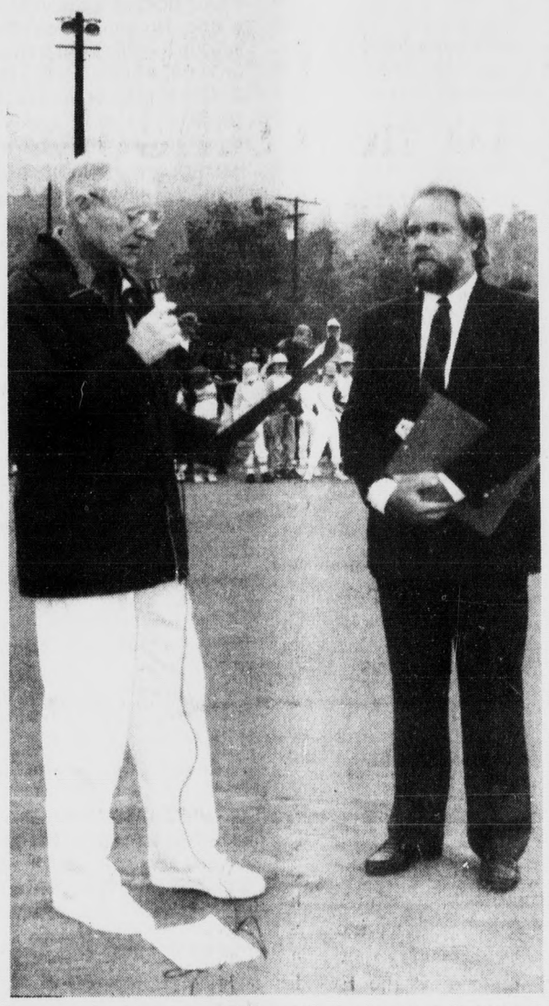

In another bit of news, he quoted The News as saying that 40 percent of Sierra Madre's waste material is green waste. He suggested that the city set up a chipping program, perhaps near the recycling area, where residents could reduce "sticks and branches" into mulch to use at home.

The council took it under advisement and told him he had given a great report.

Barbara Cato is Third Church of Christ reader

Third Church of Christ, Scientist, Pasadena announces that Barbara Cato will soon be their First Reader. Barbara is a retired lawyer who has served as a judge in the small claims court in Pasadena. She and her husband, Glen Cato, reside in Pasadena.

Barbara Seitz, who will be the Second Reader, teaches special education students in the El Monte Unified School District. She lives in Pasadena and is president of the Lamanda Park Neighborhood Association.

Cato and Sietz are lay members. They will be reading the Bible Lesson at the Sunday Worship Service. They are elected to three year terms beginning in July.

Third Church also has a new organist, David Wolfe, who has received a Master of Arts degree in Music from California State University, Fresno, and the Konzertreife Certificate in organ from the Musikhochschule of Saarland, Germany. Joining with David is soloist, Paul Hinshaw. For many years Paul has been both a soloist and a choral member with the Los Angeles Master Choral.

Snail time, snail time to lumber in Apr. 26-28

On behalf of the State of California, and the 48th District Agricultural Association, I would personally like to invite you to visit the San Gabriel Valley's Second Annual Great Snail Festival, April 26 - 28.

From Los Angeles, take either the 60 or the 10 freeways East to Azusa Avenue. From the 60, go North. From the 10, go South. From Azusa, turn West on Temple Avenue. The festival site is about 1 mile west of Azusa.

There are two gates. Enter at the "16000 Gate," on the west side of the grounds. Check in at the Main Office, and a staff member will be notified to come escort you up the hill, to the main festival area. Due to safety concerns, vehicle travel on the site is severely limited.

Local children do town mockup

Anyone seeing a group of children walking around downtown Sierra Madre a few weeks ago may have wondered what they were doing.

These first grade children, with their teacher, Corinne Wilson, were learning the geography of downtown Sierra Madre. Part of their assignment was to map the district and recreate it in a display case in the Children's Room at Sierra Madre Library.

The miniature display is shown at the library through April and the community is welcome to see it.

Tom Kemp, JoAnn Cork and Nancy Baillie welcome Dennis M. Lee to Methodist Hospital.

Lee appointed COO at Methodist

Dennis M. Lee has been appointed Chief Operating Officer (COO) at Methodist Hospital in Arcadia and began work this month, according to Fred Meyer, president and CEO of the hospital.

Lee left the job of associate administrator at Scottsdale Memorial Hospital in Arizona where he has been since 1986. The hospital is part of a two-hospital system. He also coordinated the contracting program. Before that post he served in senior executive roles with St. Luke's Medical Center in Phoenix and with Fresno Community Hospital, 1978-1983.

Lee was born in New York but lived much of his early days in this area.

After Army service in Taiwan, he graduated from the University of Wisconsin with a BA in economics in 1971 and a Master of hospital administration in 1974.

He and his wife, Carolyn, have a 5-year-old son, Brandon. They plan to move to Arcadia soon.

SNF has busy month of fun

By Phyllis Chapman

March was a month of celebration. The city of Sierra Madre held its Annual Wistaria Fete celebrating the magnificent blooming of its 97-year-old Wistaria Vine. Two days before some of our Sierra Madre Skilled Nursing Facility residents were aboard the Dial-A-Ride for a preview look at the gorgeous blossoms. The terraced area of the Vine property is not practical for wheelchairs so we stayed aboard the bus but with a round-about route we had a good view of this giant flowering plant. The SNF Auxiliary had a boutique booth as part of the Fete's street faire that day selling lovely items made by Auxiliary Vice Pres. Patti Gilman and her committee. Administator Dennis Sutton was also on hand at the booth to give information about SNF.

To celebrate St. Patrick's Day we were all very Irish and very green. Mike Cherry came to SNF with his 2-year old daughter Kimberly, very pretty in her green outfit, and also his three Irish Wolf Hounds. There were St. Patrick's Day tray favors made by the Sierra Madre Woman's Club and the VFW Auxiliary and the traditional corn beef and cabbage dinner was truly delicious. This was topped off with a yummy green frosted cake. In honor of St. Pat's Day the family of Audi Lou Colvin sent to SNF an absolutely huge basket with a simply gorgeous flower arrangement at least 5 feet tall. It was breath-taking. Audi Lou has been a SNF resident several times in recent years.

On Palm Sunday night a beautiful program, "Jubilate," was presented at the Sierra Madre Congregational Church by their chancel choir and orchestra and enjoyed by nine of our SNF residents. At the church they removed pews in the best seating area to make room for our wheel chairs. We appreciated the help of the families and members of Bethany and St. Rita's Churches in transporting our residents to the Church and back.

A visit on Easter Saturday from the members of the Sierra Madre Volunteer Fire Department who brought the Easter Bunny was great fun as each chatted with residents and gave out chocolate Easter eggs. On Easter Sunday we had our wonderful weekend groups to provide music and prayer to celebrate this glorious holiday. Then Greg Rouze, a regular on Thursdays with his guitar, came to play for us on Easter and brought 25, 3-year-olds dressed in Easter finery and who sang for us, with motions, too.

We also enjoyed the five piece Salvation Army band who came from Santa Monica to play a number of selections for our enjoyment. They gave residents handy bags that can be hung up and said "Have a Happy Day" and also contained stationary.

TV movie critics Siskel & Ebert take note; we have movies. Resident Edith Middleton's daughter, Ann Garfinkel, brought a video of "Driving Miss Daisy" and Helen Anderson's daughter Ruth Berkey from Prairie Village, Kansas donated a video of "West Side Story" as part of our collection.

We've increased our exercise class to Monday, Wedesday, and Friday, and Ruth Flynn, a "Climb," resident comes to help. Regulars Don Parker, with his piano entertainment and Grant Owens with his art program continued to give their time at SNF as do so many other wonderful volunteers.

We say "Welcome!" to a new member of our office staff, Cindy Barker, who is now our accounts payable rep. Cindy is an Altadena resident, was just married two years ago and has an insurance broker's license. She formerly worked with insurance. She replaces Beverly Kidd who had been with SNF for several years and left to join her husband in the new business he has started. Cindy is not only very capable but is very friendly and pleasant to know.

Birthdays are always a celebration at SNF and we said "Happy Birthday" at a party for our SNF residents born in March. They were Julia Jeffries, Madge Lewis, Althea McGee, Mike Ramljack, Keith Smith and Marie Swadowska.

Foresters recognize Child Abuse Prevention Month

In conjunction with National Child Abuse Prevention Month, Court No. 887, San Gabriel Valley of The Independent Order of Foresters is participating in the fourth annual I.O.F. Child Abuse Prevention Awareness Week, Apr. 21-27.

Special program for singles Apr. 29

The San Gabriel Valley YWCA singles will offer "The Natal Birth Chart" with Jim Pulliam, ,astrologist, on Monday, Apr. 29 at 7 p.m. at 961 S. Glendora Avenue in West Covina.

The speaker is a member of the American Federation of Astrology and the International Society for Astrological Research. He has studied Astrology since 1963 and has his own Charting Service.

Earthquake Preparedness brings lists of cautions for help

In line with Earthquake Preparedness Month in California, The News is publishing the second in a two-part series on earthquake tips to help residents deal with quakes.

Last week's article covered tips on what to plan before a quake and what to do during a quake.

The tips, generated by the Governor's Office of Emergency Services, includes two additional sets of recommendations, as follows.

After the quake you should:

- Check for injuries and apply first aid. Do not move seriously injured people unless they are in imminent danger.
- Hunt for hazards.
- Check for gas and water leaks, broken electrical wiring or sewage lines. If there is damage, turn off utility at source.
- Check building for cracks and damage, including roof, chimneys and foundation.
- Check food and water supplies. Emergency water may be obtained from water heaters, melted ice cubes, toilet tanks and canned vegetables.
- Turn on your portable radio for instructions and news reports. Cooperate fully with public safety officials.
- Do not use your vehicle unless there is an emergency. Keep the streets clear for emergency vehicles.
- Be prepared for aftershocks.
- Stay calm and lend a hand to others.
- If you evacuate, post a message inside your home telling family members where you can be found.

Store emergency supplies in the following places:

- Because electricity, water and gas may be out of service and emergency aid may not reach you for several days, you need to keep emergency supplies in your home, at your office and in your car. Home supplies should include the following:
- Flashlights with extra batteries. Keep beside beds and in several other locations. Do not use matches or candles after a quake until certain there are no gas leaks.
- Portable radio with extra batteries. Most telephones will be out of order or limited to emergency use. Radio will be the best source of information.
- First aid kit and skills. Keep your first aid kit well stocked and in a central location. Take basic first aid and CPR courses and keep skills current.
- Fire extinguisher. Should be suitable for all types of fires and easily accessible. Teach all family members how to use it.
- Food. Store a one-week supply of food for each person, including canned and dehydrated food, powdered milk and canned juices which can be rotated into daily diet and replenished on a regular basis.
- Blankets, clothing and shoes. Extra blankets and clothing may be required to keep warm. Have sturdy shoes to protect feet from broken glass and other debris.
- Alternate cooking source. Store barbecue, charcoal, starter and matches in case utilities are out of service.
- Special items. Have at least a week's supply of medications and food for infants and those on special diets.
- Tools. Have crescent or pipe wrench to turn off gas and water if necessary.

Sierra Madre Woman's Club enjoys spring programs

By Phyllis Chapman

You might say the Sierra Madre Woman's Club used a holistic approach in selecting programs for their meetings in February and March.

Dr. John M. Talevich who has had a 10-year chiropractic practice in Sierra Madre with an office at 31 S. Baldwin, spoke to the group about osteoporosis and its prevention. Dr. Talevich dispelled some myths and emphasized the importance of exercise, particularly walking, which creates a stress to strengthen bones. Good diet is also most necessary with an abundance of fruits and vegetables to provide the source of calcium needed by the body.

A healthy mind was not being overlooked by the club when they invited Fay Angus whose talk "The Gentle Art of Being There" provided good humor, laughter being the best medicine, and ideas for a self-help approach to living. Angus, a Sierra Madre resident, is a much-sought-after speaker and a widely published author. This was her third time, by request, that the group has invited her to be their speaker.

Born in Brisbane, Australia, and raised in Shanghai, she spent 2½ years in a Japanese internment camp in China with her mother during WWII. She and her husband, the "dour Scot," raised their son and daughter in Sierra Madre.

Anne Kennedy from the Wellness Community Foothills spoke about this group's free program of hope, friendship and learning for people with cancer and their families. The Wellness Community began in Santa Monica but this local chapter at 100 Hill Ave., Pasadena, provides a more convenient location for people in this area.

Their program helps cancer patients to recover to the greatest extent possible along with their physicians, rather than acting as hopeless, helpless, passive victims. It provides a variety of means through which these patients can actively participate in the fight for recovery. Family and friends are also welcome to take part.

Surely the Mission String Quartet was present for a program at the club by special perscription. All professional musicians and much in demand, this group played together for several years as a classical quartet. About nine years ago they included some Rodgers & Hammerstein numbers in their program (they had found an album arranged for string quartet) and the audience was fascinated. Now "lighter" music and show tunes are their main repertoire and they do it all with much flair, although culture is not sidestepped completely as they included the lovely "Serenade" by Hadyn.

The quartet was the program for the Club's Reciprocity Day, attended by club presidents from the Verdugo District, California Federation of Women's Clubs and Deanna Alfeld, district president, as honored guests.

Woman's Club, Civic Club reap high honors

By Phyllis Chapman

Sierra Madre Civic Club and Sierra Madre Woman's Club members attended the 35th Annual Convention of Verdugo District, California Federation of Women's Clubs held Apr. 15 at Embassy Suites in Arcadia.

Deanna Alfeld, district president, presided at the convention which was opened with posting of the colors by Brownie Troup No. 762 of the Sierra Madres Girl Scout Council. Greetings and commendations to the District from California Assemblyman Richard L. Mountjoy were presented by his Adminsitrative Assistant, Peggy Mew. Verdugo District is one of 35 districts making up the California Federation with the Federation beginning in the early 1900s. They are part of a national Federation headquartered in Washington, D. C. and an international Federation with a membership totaling over 11 million.

Annual awards were part of the business of the Convention with Civic Club receiving a sweepstakes for the largest membership gain in the district, presented to Judie Cimino and Joan Crow, membership co-vice presidents. The Club also won a sweepstakes for their Community Service.

Other awards presented to Civic Club in the club size catagory, many of them firsts, were for Veterans and Public Affairs to Anita Thompson, chairman, for work on behalf of recognition for women veterans; scholarship, Gloria Giersbach; conservation, Nan Carlton; environmental issues, Cimino; library services, education, Shirley McGillicuddy; safety, citizenship, Crow, arts and crafts, Sheri Burnett; drama, Mary Stoddard; international understanding, Gail-Ann Skiles and Phyllis Chapman for their work in the HAI program; health, Melinda Anderson; and Status of Women, Margaret Switzer. Switzer's report will be sent on to the state convention.

For the Woman's Club Phyllis Chapman received a first in the Club's large size catagory as Membership Chairman. Other firsts were Phyllis Harris, spiritual values; fundraising, Dollie Morant, who also received a first for arts and crafts; legislation, Martha Van De Verg; home life, citizenship and veterans affairs to Ola Smith; environmental issues, Harris; music and dance, Hope Todd; library services, Eleanor Herzberg; community service, home life, Mary Kay Gifford; California history and landmarks, Chapman; safety, crime prevention, Van De Verg; and an award to the club for Community Service.

Scholarship money of over $1000 was distributed to students participating in the District's Fine Arts Festival. Several winners were sponsored by the two clubs with awards made for vocal, instrumental, creative arts and speeches.

Sandra McIntosh, was convention chairman and she also serves as TV, Motion Picture Chairman for the District. She was assisted by Dea McCrory, immediate district past president. McIntosh introduced convention speakers Melissa Higgins, Dept. of Commerce Deputy Director of the California Film Commission and Tony Lorea, veteran actor whose most recent appearance was on "L.A. Law."

"California is losing $3 billion annually in runaway production to other states," said Higgins. These states have been aggressively luring film projects away from California and the California Film Commission was established to attract and promote film production in this state. Production dollars spent here contribute significantly to a whole economic diagram in addition to the film industry including additional jobs, equipment rental, costumes, the food industry etc. that benefit the area. An average production spends $32,000 in L. A. County every day and the industry contributes approximately $100,000 in state sales tax. Higgins also shared information and literature about renting your own home or business for film production.

Lorea spoke of the history of the Pasadena Playhouse and its adjacent six story College of Theatre Arts of which he is an alumnus along with other well-known acting luminaries as Lee J. Cobb, Robert Young, Sally Struthers, Gene Hackman and Dustin Hoffman to name just a very few. The successful revitalization in recent years of the playhouse, its 99-seat Balcony Theatre and that three floors of the College are restored and the hope is to re-open the College.

Alfeld hosted a pre-convention party at Embassy Suites on Sunday, Apr. 14 with the group moving on later to dinner at a nearby restaurant. Delegates and representatives from the Civic Club and Woman's Club attending Convention were Mary Kay Gifford, Phyllis Harris, Lucile Flanders, Margaret Switzer, Arlie Hahn, Phyllis Chapman, Joan Crow, Ruth Teigler, Betty Bush and Jeanne Peterson.

himself. Matthew wasn't so sure. He couldn't think of anyone who would give him easy cash except for his babysitting jobs.

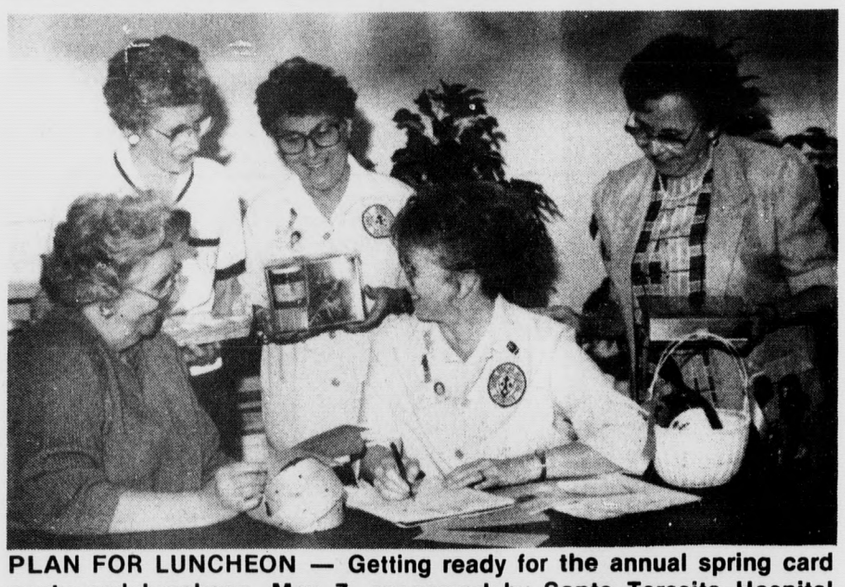

How will they reproduce their paper? "My dad has a masters (degree). He's terrific at computers. He knows a lot. Every single night he types. Mom says he learned more knowledge from computers that he discovers on his own. Dad helped us get our bank account. When I get old enough and kind of responsible I can now the lawn," Brandon said.

"Right now we'll just copy it (the newspaper) on a copy machine," Matthew stated.

After the newspaper maybe they'll go into movies. "Like showbiz," Brandon hunched his shoulders and grinned. "Maybe we should do like that guy who bought 50,000 Lotto tickets for $1 and sold them each for $2. If nobody bought, he'd throw away all that money." Philosophical thinking.

Well, back to the newspaper, Brandon's dad said, "You better be good or you'll be dead if you don't make it." Or something like that. Much like Murdoch's father might have cautioned before the son amassed his fortune of newspapers.

Watch the streets for the newspaper. We'll let you know when they name it.

PLAN FOR LUNCHEON — Getting ready for the annual spring card party and luncheon, May 7, sponsored by Santa Teresita Hospital Auxiliary, are Mary Jordan, Jean Couisneau and Christana Veia, standing, and Mary McCarthy, chair, and Betty Considine, seated. 'Mary's year' includes short meeting, senior center, redevelopment

After representatives of various legislators representing the city of Arcadia gave plaques and letters of commendation to outgoing Mayor Mary Young, the council voted unanimously to elect Charles Glb to an unpresidented fourth term as mayor.

Wellington Love spoke for Senator Newton Russell and said this was "Mary's year," as she is Arcadia's Citizen of the Year and has been honored by the senator as Woman of the Year in his congressional district.

City manager George Watts gave the outgoing mayor a placque commemorating her nine-minute-39 second council meeting which set an alltime record for the shortest council meeting.

Young talked about the past year as being a good and productive year, pointing out the new senior center and the redevelopment area on East Huntington as well as the revised general plan and tightened ordenances.

She also pointed out that there are many changes and demands from the outside, "We are faced with a water cutback, a trash disposal problem, congestion management, which includes air quality and transportation."

Young also said, "We still need sound walls," and indicated that not getting those walls built was her biggest disappointment.

Robert Harbicht was elected mayor pro tem on a voted of 3-2 with council's newest members, George Fasching and Joe Ciraulo, voting against Harbicht's nomination. Harbicht also served as mayor pro tem for Gilb's last term as mayor.

As Gilb took his seat at the head of the council table, he lauded Young for going beyond the call of duty, said that the council "stands behind our police department 100 percent" and that the "foundation of this community was built by people not here today," because they have either moved away or passed away.

Apaches, Koalas get together in AHS trip to Sister City

"Apaches V Koalas: marching to beat of a different drum no more" read The Newcastle Herald headline which accompanied a story recalling Arcadia High School Apache Marching Band's first visit to Newcastle, Australia in 1982 and announcing a return visit the first week of April this year.

In 1982 the Apaches played a major role in the formation of the Koala Marching Band, which, since tht time, has made two appearances in Southern California, including a New Year's Day march in the Rose Parade.

The Apaches and Koalas joined for concerts and a parade in Newcastle, which is Arcadia's Sister City, during a two-week Australia trip which covered an extended Spring Vacation for the Arcadia High students in the band, orchestra and auxiliary guard.

Randy Metz, a senior saxophonist in the band, said that one of the highlights of his trip was seeing the Apaches featured on a television report, "The Yanks are Here," following their march through Newcastle.

While in Newcastle, Arcadia students stayed with host families, making new friends, explained Jenny Wu, a sophomore member of the auxiliary guard. She said "We only knew them for four days; we became best friends." Generally, the local students felt that their Australian counterparts were outgoing and friendly. Metz indicated that the Aussie students were not as materialistic and pointed out that American kids "have to have certain (brand name) jeans." In Australia, jeans are so expensive, they are happy to have any brand.

Wu said that the trip was worthwhile because of the firiends she made "down under," adding that they are so far away, so different, but so much the same. She pointed out some language differences; while Americans would say good, Australians say choice; expensive instead of dear; napkins, not serviettes; pen for bairo; to-go (fast food) instead of take away.

Over 1000 elementary students attended a concert put on by the local students in Canberra. That was a thrill for junior Ken Lee, who plays the cello, because the orchestra is not used to having such a sizeable audience, said Lee.

Because the Apaches were an inspiration for the first marching band in Australia, Lee wonders if the AHS trip will also be the beginning of a new Koala orchesta.

The Arcadia delegation of 204, including students and chaperones, also went to Parliament in Canberra, where they saw a debate going on in the newest Parliament house in the world.

They perfomed at the Sydney Royal Randwick Race Track for the Sydney Cup and took side trips to the Tidbinbilla Nature Reserve and Deep Space Tracking Station as well as the Goulbourne Sheep Station.

The Koalas' last trip to Arcadia was in 1989 as they were on their way to the Calgary Stampede. Because of the friendships that have been made and because the Aussie band has other invitations to play throughout the work, don't be surprised if the Koalas and Apaches get together in Arcadia in the near future.

In introducing the honorees in district pamphlet, Superintendent Terry Towner wrote, "What characterizes these people is not only their dedication and commitment to service but their ability to care about others, risk more than usual to serve people, dream what they can do rather than just what they are doing, and expect of themselves nothing less than the best."

Those named in Profiles in Excellence, who were honored at Tuesday night's Board of Education meeting and at the Inter-Service Club luncheon today, include Rose Marie Papararo, who has been administrative assistant to the superintendent for the past 10 years; and Carol Whipple, who is responsible for the parent/student counseling programs at Camino Grove and Holly Avenue Elementary Schools.

Arcadians told to conserve water usage or pay surcharge

Because of drought conditions for the past five years and because of minimal snowpack in the Sierra Nevada Mountain range, all local water sources serving Arcadia are the lowest they have been in 50 years, according to the Arcadia Water Division.

As a result, both local water sources, the Raymond Basin and Main San Gabriel Basin, are not able to meet current needs. Compounded with the fact that Metropolitan Water District's sources also are low, Arcadia will not be able to purchase enough supplemental water to offset current water needs, adds the local water division report.

The need for water conservation is essential and to encourage that conservation, the Arcadia City Council approved a mandatory water conservation ordinance which went into effect Feb. 5.

The new ordinance requires each household and business to cut back water use by at least 10 percent of what it had used in a three-year average for each billing period. If a customer exceeds the base allotment, a surcharge rate will be applied to the overuse units.

For the first violation, water use in excess of the base allotment will be billed at two times the current water rate and added to the current water rate. The second violation will carry a surcharge penalty of three times the current rate; and three or more violations would be four times the current rate.

Council action says no to San Francisco meeting

Because the city of San Francisco officially sanctioned opposition to the Persian Gulf War and declared the city a sanctuary for those who opposed the Gulf War, the Arcadia City Council approved a resolution recommending removal of the League of California Cities Fall Conference from the city and county of San Francisco.

The resolution was approved on a unanimous vote at last week's council meeting; however, the council was informed that the conference would still be held in San Francisco but that the city would be made aware of the concern regarding its stand on the war.

Study of fire station no. 2 approved

A site analysis and space needs study of Arcadia Fire Station No. 2 on Baldwin Ave., at a cost of $16,420, was approved by the City Council last week.

This was phase one of three parts which were proposed by the architect firm of Wolff/Long/Christopher.

The council decided to hold off on spending over $100,000 for schematic design, project development and construction document preparation until phase one was completed.

The existing station is 34 years old and of insufficient size to house the pumper ladder truck or accommodate additional personnel, according to a report from the fire department.

Other Foothills medalists were Sean Suchter, Mark Chen, Dean Chiang and Brandan Brachen for third place in Science Bowl. Suchter and Albert Huang also teamed up for a fourth place finish in Crime Busters.

Public hearings set for lot consolidation, capital improvement

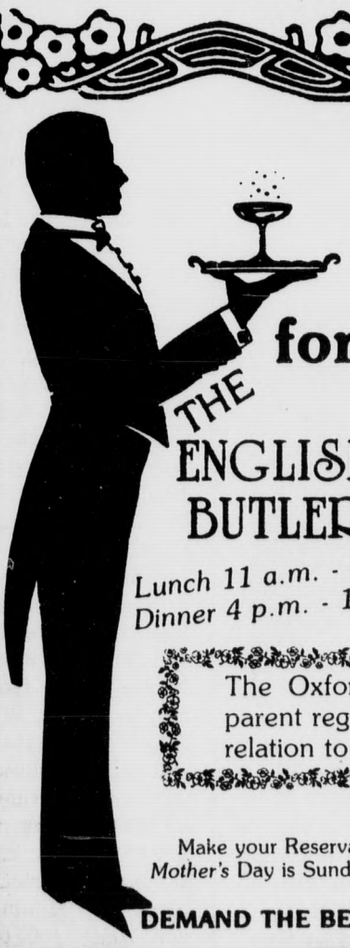

Two public hearings have been set for the Arcadia City Council meeting of May 7, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

One hearing will be on consideration of an appeal of the Planning Commission's approval of consolidating 118 lots into 13 lots. The city of El Monte has appealed the decision to consolidate the lots along Clark Street and the one lot which is a back lot, having no street frontage.

The other public hearing will be for a proposed capital improvement program for 1991-92 through 1995-96.

No one spoke at last week's hearing which considered adding a new zoning designation of R-1 15,000, establishing another one-family zone that requires a minimum lot size of 15,000 square feet.

The City Council, hearing no public input, approved the proposal 5-0 and directed staff to prepare the appropriate ordinance.

"I am very pleased the way our benefit turned out and I want everyone to know how appreciative we all are," Carol Ciraulo, chairman of the Arcadia Republican Women's Club benefit said recently. Jean Cope is president of the group.

Ciraulo said that the benefit, called "Go for the Glitz," a fashion show by Linda Bentley of Newport Beach, brought over $3000 to the coffers of the Arcadia club.

Monty Lindsey assisted Ciraulo at the benefit this month and seating was done by Mary Hanson.

Entertainment was provided by Robert Korda.

About 175 men and women attended the fete on Apr. 13 at the San Gabriel Country Club. Professional models showed unusual and outstanding fashions.

This is one of three benefits during the year, with one planned for Aug. 3 which is a luau at the Ciraulo home. "Although it is almost sold out, those who wish to attend should call 303-8747," Ciraulo told The News. Dinner, entertainment and gifts from Hawaii cost $35.

BALDWIN STOCKER HSA RECIPIENTS — Baldwin Stocker Elementary School's Honorary Service Award recipients for 1991 are Jean Parrille, Susanne Spandau, Milton Sonnevik, Jeanne Leonhard and Susie Albe.

Baldwin Stocker salutes Albe, Leonard, Parrille, Spandau, Sonnevik at program

Baldwin Stocker Elementary School celebrated its 25th birthday last month by awarding PTA Honorary Service Awards and by taking a trip down memory lane during a "Night With Stars."

Milton Sonnevik, Baldwin Stocker's first principal, narrated a slide show that took the audience back to the school's opening day in 1966. First grade students under the direction of teachers Nina Curone, Lauren Spurr and Jeanne Leonhard and the ESL Newcomers class taught by Charlene Mutter performed with songs and poems.

These receiving honors from the PTA were Susie Albe, Leonhard, Jean Parrille, Susanne Spandau and Sonnevik.

Some nine years ago Albe became a roommother when her oldest daughter was in kindergarten, and she has served as a roommother ever since. Additionally, she has been PTA president, parliamentarian, program vice president, recording secretary, auditor, book fair chairman, honorary service award chairman and PTA Council delegate.

Currently, she is president of First Avenue Junior High PTA. Albe also has been president of Arcadia Junior Women's Club and is active on the West Arcadia Little League board as team mom coordinator and is co-managing a T-ball team.

She and her husband, Alvin, have three girls: Jennifer, 14, a First Avenue student; Lauren, 10, and Leslie, 7, who are students at Baldwin Stocker.

A kindergarten of first grade teacher at Baldwin Stocker since 1968, Leonhard has been a member of the School Site Council and is a Leader in Instructional Technology Education for the Arcadia Unified School District. She also is a Mentor Teacher and has served as president of the Arcadia Teachers' Association.

Leonhard is a graduate of Penn State University and earned an M.S. degree in early childhood education from Cal State Los Angeles.

A seven-year room representative, Parrille has started such projects as Family Fun Night Spin Art and Pocket Lady at Baldwin Stocker. She also was PTA president last year, when she was involved in the construction of a handball wall.

Parrille also serves on the district multicultural committee and is a Green Circle facilitator. Additionally, she has served on the PTA boards at First Avenue and Arcadia High.

A member of the Methodist Hospital Auxiliary, Parrille has been team mom for Arso and Little League and was a Brownie Leader.

She and her husband, Tony, have a married daughter, Christy Jones; a son, Anthony, 11, and another daughter, Mary Ann, 8.

Ten years ago Spandau began volunteering in the resource room at Baldwin Stocker and has served as recreation and holidays chairman, classroom volunteer, fourth grade room representative, fashion show ticket chairman, second vice president for programs, inspiration, legislation and recording secretary. Currently she is sixth vice president for publicity, parliamentarian and resource room volunteer.

She is a Sunday school teacher at Arcadia Presbyterian Church, an active helper for Pack 106 of Cub Scouts and an instructor of parent education for Pasadena City College.

Spandau and her husband, Pete, are parents of Amy, 15, a sophomore at Arcadia High, and Mike, 12, a sixth grader at Baldwin Stocker.

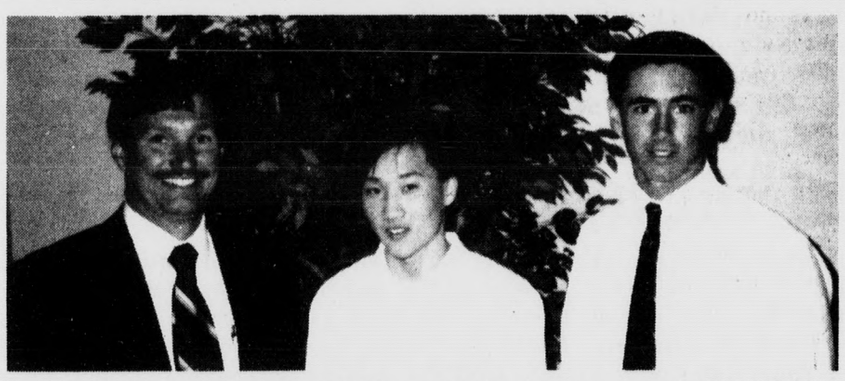

Sonnevik, who served for 20 years as the first principal at Baldwin Stocker, was honored with the National PTA Honorary Life Membership. He previously was given the Honorary Service and Continuing Service Awards from PTA, the American Educators Medal from the American Freedom Foundation of Valley Forge and the Masonic Americanism Award.

For the past 19 years, he served on the board of directors of the World Wide Missions. Now retired, he and his wife, Mabel, live in Oklahoma City. They are the parents of two grown children.

Sonia Wagner was chairman of the HSA committee, which included Mary Clifford, Mary Given, Nancy Gill, Chris White, PTA President Sue Searing and Principal June Mochizuki.

CHORUS ENTERTAINS — The Hugo Reid Chorus, led by parent volunteer Barbara George and accompanied by Janice Clark, entertains during the Founders' Day program which was dedicated to troops serving in Desert Storm.

ROTARY SALUTES STUDENTS — Ernie Jensen, president of the Arcadia Rotary Club congratulates Kenny Yoon and Doug Smaldino for being named Students of the Month at Arcadia High School. Walter Besocke was also selected for the monthly honor; however, he was not available for the picture as he was performing with the AHS band in Australia.

Besocke, Smaldino, Yoon recognized by Rotary Club

Named by the Arcadia Rotary Club as Students of the Month for March are Arcadia High School seniors Walter Besocke, Doug Smaldino and Kenny Yoon.

As a member of Pep Band, Concert Band III and Orchestra as well as clarinet section leader, Besocke is honored for his achievements in performing arts.

As a junior, he was recognized as outstanding member of Concert Band III for his grade level.

Following a family tradition, he plans to attend Pasadena City College upon his high school graduation in June.

A three-year letterman in baseball, Smaldino receives his honor for athletics. As a sophomore he received Honorable Mention in the All-Pacific League team, and as a junior he was picked for First Team All-League, All-San Gabriel Valley and Area Code (818) All-Star Team. Last year he lead his team in hits, triples, batting average, homeruns and on base percentage.

He has coached Little League and participates in cross-age teaching.

Smaldino hopes to attend USC and continue his baseball career while pursuing a business administration major.

With a 4.46 grade point average, Yoon is honored for academic success.

He is a member of the Octagon Club, Math Club, National Honor Society and California Scholarship Federation. He also is a representative to InterClub Council.

A National Merit Finalist, Yoon also is a member of the AHS Academic Decathlon Bicentennial of the Constitution and Bill of Rights Competition and Science Olympiad teams.

He hopes to become a professor because "I think education is drastically underemphasized," said this Student of the Month.

AP government students seek national honors

By winning the statewide event of the National Bicentennial Competition on the Constitution and Bill of Rights, a team of 28 Arcadia High School advanced placement government students won the right to represent California in the national finals to be held beginning this weekend in Washington, D. C.

For the last several months, the students have sold sweatshirts, held a rummage sale and meet the Team nights and have accepted donations from groups and individuals to raise the $20,000 needed for the trip.

Directed by the Center for Civic Education and co-sponsored by the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, the mock-congressional hearing competition will feature state winners from across the country.

Local members are Dennis Ballance, James Bridgeman, Guy Cammilleri, Indira Chakrabarti, Alvin Cham, Candy Chan, David Chung, Patricia Chung, Kalpana Desai, Alice Ha, Becky Havens, Flora Ho, Josh Hoffman, Tae Kim, Paul Kramarz, Amie Lam, Christine Lee, Jenne Lee and Angela Lin.

Others are Sangeeta Pal, Boris Hyle Park, Bill Rice, Jean Tang, Patricia Tsai, John Wu, Myong Yi, Kenn Yoon and Milena Zirovich.

They are coached by advanced placement government teacher Ron Morris, whose previous teams have won second and third at the state level; but this is the first time Arcadia High students have made it to the national finals.

Team members are divided into six groups for emphasis on particular aspects of government, including Political Philosophy, History and Experience, the Constitution, Establishment of Government, Fundamental Rights and Responsibilities of the Citizen.
